NICOLE MILLER

Mystical prints and moody, dark glamour ruled the runway at Nicole Miller. The looks were given a dose of edge with ripped sheer tights and metallic shoes. Major must-haves: rock 'n' roll black leather bell-bottoms and a jacket with an oversize fur collar.

THE DARK SIDE

NICOLE MILLER

Designers crossed over to the dark side at New York Fashion Week, and we're not just talking about color. Attitude came into play, too. Nicole Miller was drawn to the deep, dark forest and mythic symbols — a bit Grimm, in a good way. Monique Lhuillier's femmes fatales wore dark plum and midnight instead of black for "a glamorous mystique." Jay Godfrey's girls were grown-up rockers, and he called his black and pink shadowy florals "subversive." And Jill Stuart's "renegades and runaways" conjured good girls gone bad, in a glam kinda way.

New York Fashion Week Fall 2015: Nicole Miller Teams Up With GoPro

Nicole Miller

Nicole Miller partnered with GoPro for fall, giving fans an up-close look at her forest-inspired collection. She used dark greens and forest prints to evoke the mood.

The industry veteran, who has evolved her look from the huge dresses popular in the '80s to more of a body-hugging look, credited her ability to stay relevant to the fact that she always experiments. She admitted that as the years have gone by, she's become much more hands-off backstage.

"Before I used to double-check everybody," she said. "Now it's like, there's always just so much stuff going on, I never get to double-check anybody."

Backstage at her Friday night show, Miller said she was inspired by, "the deep, dark forest," which ultimately moved her towards mythic arts.

To that end, the famously print-centric Miller said her favorite look was a crisp black and white job dappled with iron crosses, sacred circles and hexagrams...bewitching. She used the symbols as applique on some evening looks, but went more towards the fairytale on others— like animal printed jackets with rainbow fur trim. Sort of Grimm...but in a good, subversive way. -- Anne Bratskeir

TV CONFESSIONS!

With Nicole Miller at her show

Loved the mythic arts inspiration this season. Are you a big follower of your horoscope?

Not at all, but I always loved those mystic symbols.

So you don't even believe in Mercury in retrograde?

No, and I don't do yoga either!

You were just filming for The View. Are you a big fan of daytime TV?

I'm usually at work, but when I was pregnant, I was on bed rest for nine months during the O.J. Simpson trial, so that's how I spent my time!

THE STORY

Modern, feminine, and chic: iconic American designer Nicole Miller's designs are at once elegant with a hint of rebellion. The end result is a look both sophisticated and subtly sexy. In Miller's hands, the drape and cut of gorgeous fabrics have never looked fresher.

An American born to a French mother, Miller was trained at the Rhode Island School of Design and the Chambre Syndicale de la Haute Couture in Paris. RISD inspired her sense of freedom and creativity while Chambre Syndicale gave her a mastery of the classic French techniques of haute couture.

Evident in Miller silhouettes is skillful draping that promotes a dynamic body consciousness. Echoes of art, her travels, and popular culture combine in unique prints and wildly imaginative use of color. Technology, too, finds its way into Miller's designs; she is often first to popularize a new fabric.

The non-conformist glamour of Miller's creations has earned her many fans in Hollywood. Angelina Jolie, Halle Barry, Beyonce, Joss Stone, Jordin Sparks and Felicity Huffman are among those who have recently appeared in her designs.

There are six freestanding Nicole Miller stores in the United States and Brazil. Nicole Miller apparel and accessories are also available at fine specialty stores and at Neiman Marcus, Nordstrom, Saks and Bloomingdales. Motivated by a desire to make her aesthetic available to a broad spectrum of people, Miller designs the nicole by Nicole Miller collection offered at more than 600 JC Penney stores nationwide.

A strong believer in protecting our natural environment, Miller actively supports the Rocky Mountain Institute and Robert Kennedy Jr.'s Riverkeeper. Together with her husband, Kim, and son, Palmer, Miller divides her time between New York City and Sag Harbor, NY.
